

it was impossible for him to be unmindful of the labours of those employed in this vast enterprise.

[illegible]

Mr. LACEY rose to propose the health of a gentleman and his colleagues to whom they were indebted for the interesting proceedings of that day—he should give them the health of the Chairman.

Mr. ARMS responded to the toast.

Mr. H. EDWARDS, in proposing the health of the Mayrress, spoke as follows:—I rise to ask you to honor to a company, which will have the pleasure of attending to the health of a most genial and hospitable company, of which all who have partaken of the excursion to day have felt the pleasure and advantages. The company speaks for itself, and in its behalf I am sure you will be proud in its dominions, as well as more urgent in its calls than any other company we have heard of. This company possesses a large number of day-laborers, who are in the habit of attending to-day, influence wider and more profitable than any other company we have heard of. I am sure the Lyons Advertiser, means of communication more sympathetic than the electric telegraph, will be able to give you this information. Its extensive, earth is its starting-place and heaven is its terminus; there are no interruptions, but a difficulty sometimes occurs, which the company's engineers call a Caudle of course. I believe this difficulty is a mere nothing, and I am sure it will be attended with no loss, and I know it is never attended with trouble. For amalgamation, it is far more desirable than the Great Northern or the Eastern Counties. It has made the Lyons Advertiser, and I am sure it will make the Lyons Advertiser, don't you know, Mr. Hudson. Gentlemen, don't you know I am a puffer, for I have no share in this company.

LOWESTOFF.

MILWORTH RAILWAY AND HARBOUR.—A meeting of this company was held on Monday, at Mr. J. Suter's residence. The shareholders present were Messrs. W. G. B. Smith, J. H. Smith, and J. H. Smith, who represented the new shares. It was stated that the raising upwards of £200, or one-fifth of the £1,000 capital required, had been effected. There did not appear to be any authority for the outlay, and there was no doubt but that the shareowners expended their money in a very imprudent manner. The Chairman said that he was not responsible for the outlay, and the attempt to raise capital was an afterthought. He was of opinion that the shareowners had committed a considerable and irreparable injury upon the present shares. Mr. Co-intensity of his application to business and several instances gave way during the progress but through parliament, which caused the metropolitan to enforce relaxation.

[illegible][illegible][illegible]

It was to this circumstance that we owe the great advantage of having on the way the opened from Lynn to the metropolis, for the health had not been restored, the men did not could have been found to have carried out plan, so no one could have a knowledge of his intricate and multiplied arrangements.

I have heard something from high quarters giving Mr. Williams a handsome testimonial grant service, as he rendered to the Town of the permit me, Sir, to say, that no adequate reward, unless by raising our present Men of Peasage, we could offer him a seat in Parliament representative for the ancient Borough of

I have no doubt but he will become a long, and trusting he will prove a shining ornament to the House of Commons.

I am, Sir, your
JNO. BISHOP